FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

National Arts Program with a Local Connection

This fall PBS will broadcast the next three installments of the San Francisco Symphony's Keeping Score series, an innovation look at classical music and its relevance in today's world hosted by Michael Tilson Thomas. What viewers around the county may not know is that teachers in Fresno County have played an important role in creating the educational component of this national initiative. The San Francisco Symphony's electronic media manager, Edie Cheng, and Keeping Score Education Program Manager, Andi Yannone, will join Fresno educators to celebrate this partnership in a reception and showcase on October 13 at the KVPT studios in Fresno.

The San Francisco Symphony's Keeping Score Education program is a collaborative project among the Symphony, the Fresno County Office of Education, the Fresno Philharmonic, KVPT, KVPR and other local partners. Keeping Score Education connects classical music with today's audience through innovative training that allows classroom teachers to integrate classical music throughout the core curriculum.
